

Contents

List of Tables	XX
List of Figures	XX
Notes on the Contributors	XX

Introduction: Wine Economics and Modelling

Part I Alcohol Consumption and Welfare

- 1 Life Satisfaction and Alcohol Consumption: an Empirical Analysis of Self-Reported Life Satisfaction and Alcohol Consumption in OECD Countries
Jan Bentzen and Valdemar Smith
 - 1.1 Introduction
 - 1.2 Literature review and issues in the happiness-income
 - 1.3 Modelling of the happiness-alcohol relationship
 - 1.4 Alcohol consumption and life satisfaction
 - 1.5 Estimating the happiness-alcohol model
 - 1.6 Conclusions
- 2 Advertising and the Demand for (non)Alcoholic Beverages
Ruben Hoffman and Yves Surry
 - 2.1 Introduction
 - 2.2 The alcohol market
 - 2.3 Optimal alcohol tax model
 - 2.4 Calibration case study
 - 2.5 Conclusion
- 3 Alcohol Demand, Externalities and Welfare Maximising Alcohol Taxes
James Fogarty
 - 3.1 Introduction
 - 3.2 Model framework
 - 3.3 Data and estimation procedure
 - 3.4 Empirical results
 - 3.5 Conclusion

Part II Consumers' Behaviours and Prices

- 4 The Economic Value of Wine Names that Reference Place in the U.S. Market: Analysis of "Champagne" and Sparking Wine
Hyunok Lee and Daniel A. Sumner
 - 4.1 Introduction
 - 4.2 Previous econometric research on wine place names
 - 4.3 Data source and data description
 - 4.4 Econometric estimation of the hedonic price equations with market data
 - 4.5 Econometric results and interpretations of the price equation for sparkling wine sold in the United States
 - 4.6 Conclusion
- 5 The Price of Wine: Does the Bottle Size Matter?
Jean-François Outreville
 - 5.1 Introduction
 - 5.2 Does the bottle matter?
 - 5.3 A measure of the relative scaled price index
 - 5.4 The market price of large bottles at auctions
 - 5.5 Conclusion and suggestions for further research

6 Wine Judging and Tasting

Matteo Galizzi

6.1 Introduction

6.2 Literature review

6.3 The wine judging system and experts' panels in Italy: a price formation model?

6.4 The three main professional guides in Italy, and their data on wines and awards

6.5 Empirical analysis and results: the awards by the professional guides in 2008

6.6 Conclusion

7 Willingness to Pay for Appellations of Origin: Results of an Experiment with Pinot Noir Wines in France and Germany

Pascale Bazoche, Pierre Combris, Eric Giraud-Héraud and Jean-Baptiste Traversac

7.1 Introduction

7.2 Willingness to pay (WTP) for protected designation of origin and other wine characteristics

7.3 Experiment design and method

7.4 Data and results

7.5 Conclusion

Part III Wine Ranking and Financial Issues

8 How Best to Rank Wines: Majority Judgment

Michel Balinski and Rida Laraki

8.1 Introduction

8.2 Traditional amalgamation schemes and the "Judgment of Paris"

8.3 Why the traditional amalgamation schemes fail

8.4 Majority judgment

8.5 Majority judgment in use

8.6 Conclusion

9 Wine as an Alternative Asset Class

Philippe Masset and Jean-Philippe Weisskopf

9.1 Introduction

9.2 Investment opportunities on the market for fine wine

9.3 Academic literature

9.4 Empirical study of the market for fine wine

9.5 The case of the US wine market

9.6 The case of the Swiss wine market

9.7 Conclusion

10 Financial Reaction to Business Cycle in Period of Difficulties: the Case of French Wine Companies

Paul Amadiéu, Jean-Pierre Couderc and Jean-Laurent Viviani

10.1 Introduction

10.2 Theoretical foundations of hypotheses

10.3 Data, variables and method

10.4 Results

10.5 Conclusion

Part IV Intermediary Markets and Strategic Decisions

11 The Technical Efficiency of Wine Grape Growers in the Murray-Darling Basin in Australia

Tim Coelli and Orion Sanders

11.1 Introduction

11.2 Sample data and variable selection

11.3 Methods

11.4 Empirical results

11.5 Conclusion

12 Product Assortment and the Efficiency of Farms

Gordana Manevska-Tasevska

12.1 Introduction

12.2 Dimensions of product assortment

12.3 Method

12.4 Data and variables

12.5 Results

12.6 Discussion and conclusions

13 Determinants of Wine Bottling Strategic Decisions: Empirical Evidences from the Italian Wine Industry

Giulio Malorgio, Cristina Grazia, Francesco Caracciolo and Carla De Rosa

13.1 Introduction

13.2 Conceptual framework

13.3 Data, variables, and model specification

13.4 Results

13.5 Discussion and final remarks

14 Export Intentions of Wineries

Isabel Bardají, Belen Iraizoz and Julio Estavillo

14.1 Introduction

14.2 Theoretical foundation and hypothesis development

14.3 Research design

14.4 Results

14.5 Conclusion

Part V New Topics

15 Wine Tourism and On-Site Wine Sales

Françoise Bensa and Marie-Claude Pichery

15.1 Introduction

15.2 The actors of wine tourism and their expectations

15.3 Wine tourism in terms of experiential marketing

15.4 Methodology

15.5 Analysis of results

15.6 Conclusion

16 The High and Rising Alcohol Content of Wine

Julian M. Alston, Kate Fuller, James Lapsley, George Soleas and Kabir Tumber

16.1 Introduction

16.2 Increasing sugar content in California grapes

16.3 International evidence on the rising alcohol content of wine

16.4 Regressions of alcohol percentage against the heat index

16.5 Conclusion